Paris/Orly – March 24 2020

The company French bee is facing – as all airlines are - an extremely difficult situation, a direct result of the unusually serious global crisis.

French bee informs its customers that it is required to suspend all flights to and from French Polynesia. The numerous public health regulations taken related to the spread of COVID-19 and applicable upon arrival in Fenua, by the French State and the Territory's authorities, force it to make this decision. Therefore:

- Flights to/from Tahiti :
 - All flights originally scheduled between March 28 and April 30 2020 are cancelled.

- Flights to/from San Francisco :
 - All flights originally scheduled between April 12 and April 30 2020 are cancelled.

French bee passengers are invited to find out in real time about the measures put in place on its website : <https://www.frenchbee.com/fr/nos-alertes>.

Travellers whose flights are not scheduled within the next 3 days can write directly to reservation@frenchbee.com

The airline's absolute priority remains to ensure the health and safety of its staff and passengers in mainland France, overseas territories and in all the destinations it serves. French bee has put in place, in close coordination with the French health authorities, strict procedures to protect its staff and passengers from the spread of Covid-19. All necessary and preventive measures, both on the ground and in the air, have been taken in all areas of operation. The company's crews have been informed of the measures to be taken in the event of the appearance of symptoms.
